The Bird Observatory may occasionally offer Internship opportunities for individuals to gain experience in this field, determine if they have an interest in a particular career, create a network of contacts, or gain school credit. In order to meet the guidelines of California Labor Commissioner and Fair Labor Standards Act to qualify as an Intern, the individual needs to meet the six requirements below:

1. The training provided by the Bird Observatory is similar to what would be given in a vocational school or academic educational instruction.
2. The training is for the benefit of the Interns.
3. The Interns do not displace regular employees, but work under their close observation.

4. The Bird Observatory derives no immediate advantage from the activities of the Interns, and on occasion our operations may actually be impeded.

5. Interns are not necessarily entitled to a job at the conclusion of the training period; and

6. The Bird Observatory and the Interns understand that the Interns are not entitled to wages for the time spent in training.

Executive Director must approve all Intern candidates, the content of the Internship training program, and the hours and duration of the Internship prior to offering an Internship to an individual.

An Intern's time must be tracked using a standard timesheet template, however, an Intern's time may not be billed against any grant or contract. Interns are entitled to a monthly stipend as determined by the Executive Director. Interns are also entitled to reasonable reimbursement for expenditures, as approved by their manager. These expenditures may be billed against grants or contracts, as appropriate, as we would for program volunteers.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a - Program Service Accomplishments

Avian Science

The Snowy Plover Recovery Project works toward the recovery of the federally threatened Western Snowy Plover. Biologists monitor Snowy Plover populations by surveying salt ponds of the San Francisco Bay where the birds breed. Program biologists work closely with local land managers and restoration projects to implement management practices to help increase the Snowy Plover population in the Bay.

The Waterbird Monitoring Program collects crucial data on the population ecology of San Francisco Bay Area waterbirds. Program biologists, along with approximately 70 volunteers, monitor waterbird colonies, collect data on waterbird distribution, and document disease outbreaks. These data are especially effective in tracking trends in our local bird populations and helping to guide wetland restoration in the Bay Area.

At our research station, the Coyote Creek Field Station, we use the science of bird banding to track avian response to climate change, and document long-term demographic trends that are imperative to conserving and restoring riparian habitats.
